

Launch of Graphite Fly Rods by Charles Clemes Fly Rod and Reel Makers

- The latest rods from the one of most exclusive Fly Rod Makers in the UK
- Fresh and saltwater graphite fly rods made to the highest British standards
- Due to be launched at the Anderson Wheeler stand at the 2011 CLA Game Fair

Charles Clemes' chief fly rod and reel designer Christopher Clemes unveils his collection of graphite fly rods including the new Double Handed fly rods. This exclusive range of fresh and saltwater fly rods blend the fine workmanship of our split cane workshops with the finest modern components and innovative design.

Charles Clemes is proud of its reputation for producing bespoke split cane fly rods and reels which are renowned for their finely tuned actions, elegant looks and workmanship. Christopher Clemes has spent the past 4 years developing his new range of graphite fly rods and a limited supply of each these fine rods will be made in our workshops this year.

Charles Clemes is represented in London by Anderson Wheeler, London, and the showroom is situated at the Anderson Wheeler's, London store in Mayfair. The Charles Clemes fly rod and reel workshops situated outside of London, employ the finest split cane, metal and graphite workers in England to manufacture their bespoke and new range of fly rods, reels and accessories.

This new and limited range of fly rods will be launched at the Anderson Wheeler stand at the 2011 CLA Gamefair.

Editors Notes:

Charles Clemes 2009

Christopher Clemes, a professional guide with over 10 years experience leading tours worldwide, was made chief rod and reel designer for Charles Clemes, London, the flyfishing division of Anderson Wheeler, London.

Charles Clemes 2010

Christopher Clemes launched the No 278 fly reel, a classically designed and hand finished fly reel available in a variety of models and made to order. Designed as a functional reel the No 278 has proven popular amongst collectors due to its classic design and limited production.